Students,

You have failed yourselves.

You are all talk and nothing more.

Need I say more.

YOURS TRULY AT THE KEYS

Dirwoode:

Why are your answers so short and to the point? Are you sure you belong here? After all, the instructors in this institution have mastered the technique of long-windedness, so what's the matter with you, haven't you been listening in class, or have you been busily thinking up those short wise-guy answers to the questions that we, the readers of the MACE, have spent our hard-to-come-by time composing? Come on now, confess, and end all the mystery.

A Student Who is Concerned That the Great American Engineer's Tradition of PWA (Pushing Words Around) Will be Undermined if You Don't Shape Up and Join the Crowded Word Group

Dear (you know),

O.K. Just for you. . . .

1. My answers are short and to the point because the pencil I was issued by Dicky is likewise.

2. No, I'm not sure I belong here. But my attorney, Dan Webster, has assured me. . . .

3. Yes, I've been listening in class. Yes, I've been busily thinking up those short wise-guy answers in class.

4. Verba provisam rem non invita sequentur!! Tempus fugit.

Had enough?

Dear Dirwoode,

Have you heard the new F.M. station on 100mhz? It's radio MSOE, on nightly from 5:00 p.m. to 12:00 p.m. It runs five milliwatts and puts a nice signal up here on the ninth floor of the dorm. Listen in, they have some real tough music.

A Music Lover

Dear Music Lover,

That's what they get for buying cheap cuts.

Lieber Dirwodi!

Deine ausserordentliche Musikwissenschaft lockt mir Traenen aus den Augen! Also schenke ich Dir, Dirwodi, eine von meinen Kleinigkeiten, die Du vermehren darfst, als "Theme Song" fuer den MACE.

*Dear Dirwodi

Your extraordinary musical knowledge brings tears to my eyes. Therefore I'm giving you a present, Dirwodi: one of my little things which you may develop as you like, as a theme song for the MACE.

Eternally devoted,

Dear B. Thoven,

B. Thoven? Where did you ever get a Handel like that? Besides – Gruber wrote Silent Night!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SUPPORT FOR CAMPUS RADIO STATION

To the MACE:

The recent article on the proposed carrier-current system certainly shows that MSOE has students who are interested in constructively fighting the apathetic attitudes of fellow students.

Mr. Cadwallader stated that now is the time to begin a station which would provide just the right personal touch we need if our "school spirit" is to be brought forth. While I live off campus, and will have little exposure to the station's broadcasts, I am nevertheless pledging my full support to those involved in the carrier-current system.

The tremendous success of carrier-current systems in Wisconsin's state colleges has led many of these schools to "advance" their operations to put a fully FCC licensed FM station on the air. A case in point is Whitewater university which now has a 10 watt station on 91.7 mhz (WSUW) with a 50 mile radius coverage. In the near future they will obtain the 400 watt transmitter of WUWM-FM.

While I do not advocate that MSOE go this far (a recent FCC ruling states that no new licenses or renewals will be granted to low power educational type FM stations), this example serves to show the tremendous success that similar efforts have produced.

I am looking forward to hearing the first broadcast from our carrier-current station in the near future, and again, I say I will do all I can to assist those who initiated the project.

Sincerely yours,

Alan Bingenheimer – EE VI
